Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

One rainy afternoon, Ash and Leo discover an old world atlas. Suddenly, a tiny talking compass appears. A new adventure is about to begin.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

The compass has a problem: the names of the continents and oceans have disappeared from the map. Ash and Leo must use the clues to put the labels back.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

Leo worries that the whole world is lost. The atlas looks strange without its familiar names. What has happened to all those places?

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

Ash laughs. The world is still there; the map is missing its labels. The friends can work together to solve the mystery.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

Leo is ready to help. Ash and Leo join the compass on a search for seven continents and five oceans. Their first clue is close to home.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

The compass points toward Canada and asks which continent Ash lives on. Ash recognises North America. The first continent has its name again.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

Leo points below North America. The long continent is South America, home to the Amazon rainforest. Two continent names are back on the map.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

The compass flies across the Atlantic to Europe. The explorers then discover Asia, the largest continent. Ash identifies places including India, China and Japan, while Leo imagines how many playgrounds could fit there.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

The journey reaches Africa. Ash recognises the continent that is home to the Sahara. Another useful clue helps restore a name.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

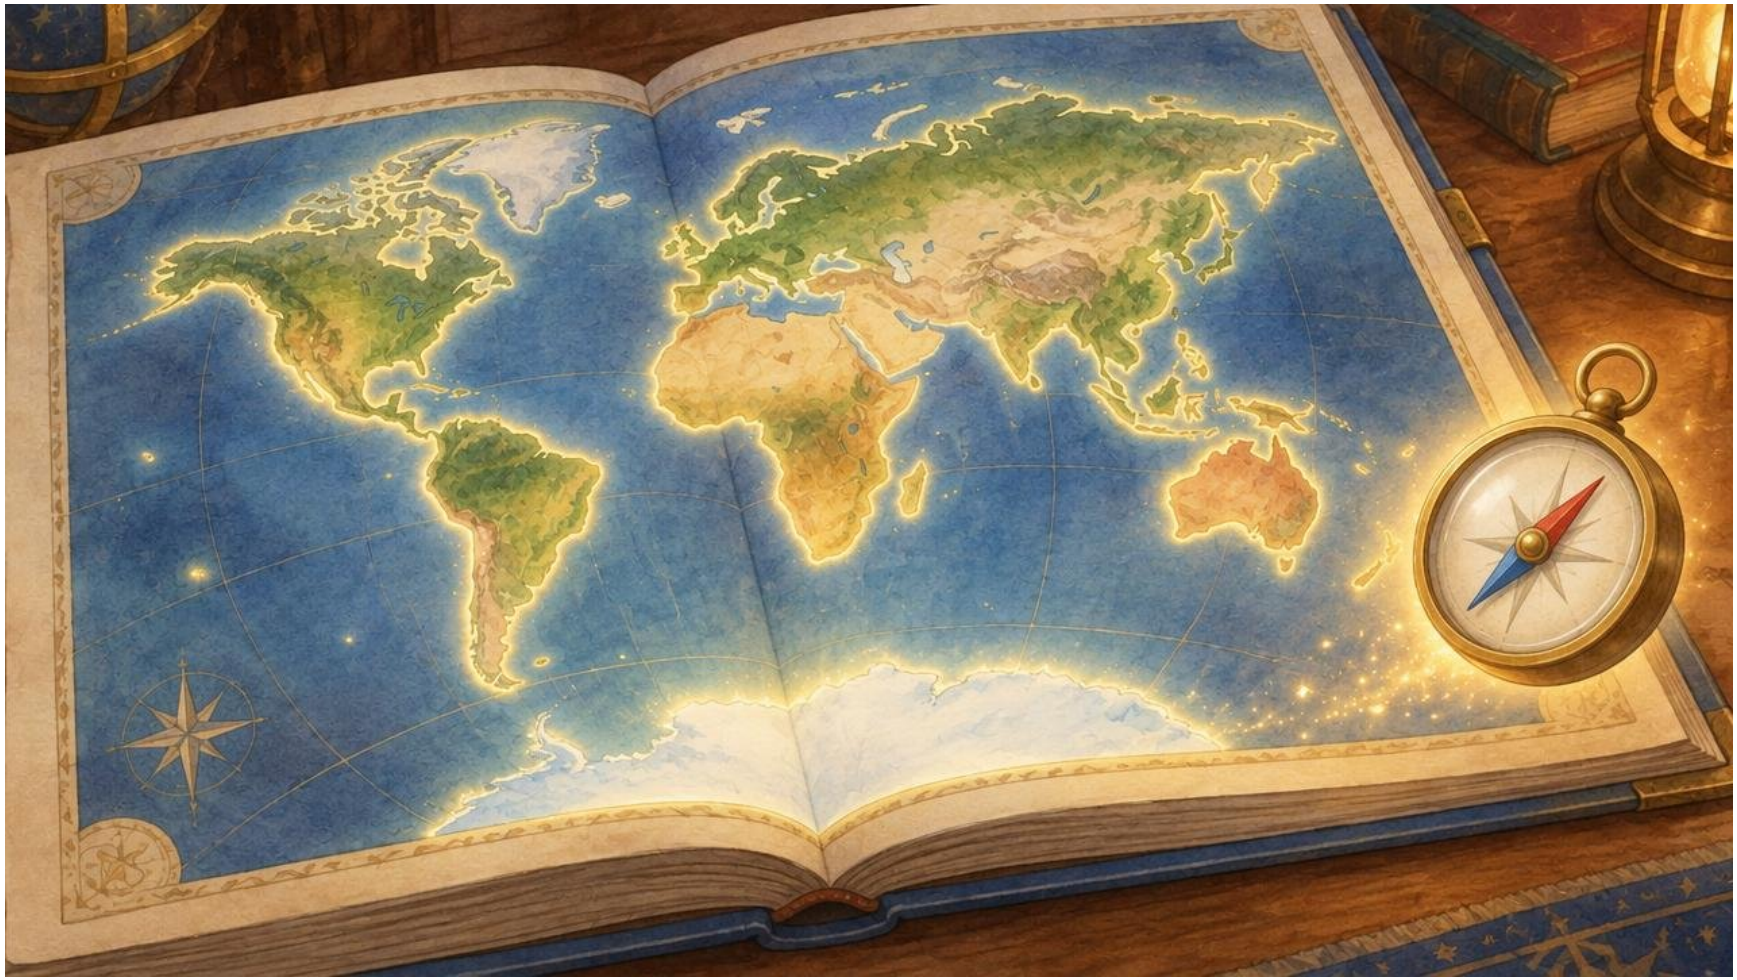

Leo looks southeast of Asia. Ash explains Australia and the wider region of Oceania, with its Pacific islands. Leo imagines becoming an island adventurer.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

An icy wind blows across the map. Leo wonders whether someone has opened a freezer. Ash laughs as the friends investigate their chilly new clue.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

The frozen continent is Antarctica, around the South Pole. All seven continents have been found. Now the friends must look for the oceans.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

The compass reminds them that five ocean names are still missing. Ash finds the Atlantic Ocean between the Americas and Europe and Africa. The ocean hunt has begun.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

Leo finds the Pacific Ocean, stretching between Asia and the Americas. It is the largest ocean. The friends have three more ocean names to find.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

Ash points to the water between Africa, Asia and Australia: the Indian Ocean. Leo looks toward the top of the world for the Arctic Ocean, around the North Pole.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

The compass asks about the ocean surrounding Antarctica. Ash and Leo identify the Southern Ocean together. The restored map begins to glow.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

A glowing line appears around the globe. Leo jumps and wonders whether someone has drawn on the planet. This new clue is different from a continent or ocean.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

Ash explains the Equator. It separates the Northern and Southern Hemispheres. Leo wants to know where Canada belongs.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

Canada is in the Northern and Western Hemispheres. The friends use the globe to connect places with these imaginary divisions of Earth.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

The compass has helped the friends find their way. By noticing clues, Ash and Leo have restored the missing names and explored how a map describes our world.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

Leo celebrates their discovery. Ash reminds him that they have saved the map’s labels. Learning those names helps them understand the places and waters around the world.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

Ash invites the audience to join in. Can you name seven continents and five oceans? Look at the map and share the places you remember.

Ash & Leo: The Mystery of the Missing Continents

Leo invites you to try the map challenge. Keep exploring, ask a new question and make a discovery of your own. Small questions. Big adventures.
